5. SANCTIONS EVASION TACTICS & INDICATORS

■■ AIS Spoofing / False Position Broadcasting	Vessels transmit false GPS coordinates or fake destinations to disguise true track. Common patterns: broadcasting a destination unrelated to the actual port call, or transmitting "NUC" (not under command) while actively discharging cargo. Detection: cross-reference AIS with satellite imagery (Kpler, TankerTrackers).
■ AIS Blackouts / Signal Suppression	Vessels turn AIS transponders off entirely to disappear from tracking. Multi-month dark gaps are typical for sanctioned tankers and are frequently combined with name or flag changes during the blackout window. Detection: gap analysis in AIS history, satellite SAR imagery.
■■ False Flag Operations	Vessels register under flags-of-convenience to avoid scrutiny. Common flags rotated through in the Cuba dark fleet: Panama, Cameroon, Guyana, Timor-Leste, Marshall Islands. Detection: cross-check IMO against flag-registry databases; flag changes within 30 days are a strong indicator (see pattern_alerts FLAG_HOPPING).
═■ Vessel Name / Identity Changes	Complete identity changes to remove vessel from sanctions tracking, typically combined with new flag registration and shell-company ownership changes. Detection: track IMO numbers (permanent) rather than vessel names. The IMO survives any rebrand.
■ Ship-to-Ship (STS) Transfers	Cargo transferred between vessels at sea to obscure origin. Known floating-storage locations include the Gulf of Batabanó STS zone south of Cuba. Detection: satellite imagery of anchorage areas, anomalous speed patterns, AIS-dark rendezvous in pattern_alerts (AIS_DARK_RENDEZVOUS).
■ Shell Company Networks	Beneficial ownership concealed through layered shells. Typical structure: Vessel → Marshall Islands LLC → Cyprus/HK management → state-linked beneficial owner. See Section 6 for the current sanctioned-entity registry. Detection: beneficial-ownership databases, Panama/Pandora Papers analysis.
■■ Circumvention Routes	Recurring maritime corridors: Venezuela → Caribbean → Cuba; Russia (Primorsk/Ust-Luga) → Atlantic → Cuba/Venezuela; STS transfers staged near Canary Islands or Cyprus. Recurring air corridors: HAV ↔ Caracas, HAV ↔ Moscow, HAV ↔ Tehran. See the dashboard map "Traffic Corridors" layer for the live set.
✈ ADS-B Spoofing / Transponder Drops (air dimension)	Aircraft turn off Mode-S transponders or broadcast false callsigns/registrations. Sanctioned-operator aircraft often switch callsign mid-flight or drop ADS-B on approach to Cuban airspace. Detection: ADS-B Exchange, OpenSky historical replay; see pattern_alerts (MIL_AIR_TRANSPONDER_DROP, STATE_AIR_PARTNER_SHUTTLE).
